

CITY COLLEGE OF NEW YORK, ANNE AND BERNARD SPITZER SCHOOL OF ARCHITECTURE, URBAN DESIGN, & LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE
New York, New York, USA

RAFAEL VIÑOLY ARCHITECTS

By the late 1990s, the School of Architecture, Urban Design, and Landscape Architecture at the City College of New York had outgrown its home in Shepard Hall and needed a new facility. Decades of evolving academic and administrative needs had transformed the original site into a fractured, generally inadequate collection of administrative offices, which were relocated prior to the renovation. Rafael Viñoly Architects overhauled an existing structure—a five-story, modernist glass-block building designed and constructed as a library in the late 1950s—to satisfy the university's needs. Preserving only the reinforced-concrete columns and floor slabs, the firm cut a large opening in each floor plate to create a central atrium and wove a series pedestrian bridges through it.
